B'nai B'rith In Vote Against World Congress

JAFFA (Spl.)—The charred remains of a large apartment house on the border line separating Tel Aviv, all Jewish city, from Jaffa, Arab city, gives visible evidence of damage and destruction wrought by Arab brigands in their riots against Jewish immigration. In addition to many deaths, which already total almost thirty, property damage will probably mount into the millions.

Under strict military guard, no new outbreaks are expected. An aspect of the riots which have given authorities much cause for worry is the large number of Arab women taking part in the demonstrations and the young boys, ranging in age from 8 to 14 years of age, who regularly march with the rioters.

Largest Jewish Body In Nation To Stay Out

CINCINNATI, O. (JTA)—The decision of B'nai B'rith, international fraternal order, not to participate in the forthcoming world Jewish Congress was made known announced last week by Alfred M. Cohen, its president.

He said that "the vote of the order's executive committee showed an overwhelming unfavorable sentiment to the holding of a World Jewish Congress in the near future."

It was explained that an intensive study of the world Jewish situation had been made after which the committee decided that the interests of Jewry would not be served by a congress this summer.

The decision of the largest Jewish fraternal order in the world not to participate in the World Jewish Congress was made known in a letter sent to secretaries of the local lodges. The letter follows:

"I wish to inform you that the executive committee with practical unanimity has decided that the B'nai B'rith shall not participate in the proposed World Jewish Congress to be held in Geneva next August.

"We are informed by a number of our lodges that the American Jewish Congress has addressed them asking them to participate in the election of delegates to the World Jewish Congress.

As is well known, the long and firmly established rule of B'nai B'rith is that matters of national and international concern shall be dealt with by the executive committee of the order, which is the highest authority of the order between its conventions.

To avoid confusion I believe that a copy of this letter should be sent by you to all the lodges in your district.

(Signed) ALFRED M. COHEN,
President.

Vote For Congress

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Decision of the English Grand Lodge of B'nai B'rith to participate in the coming World Jewish Congress was made known here by the American Jewish Congress on receipt of a cablegram from London. The vote, according to the announcement, (Continued on Page 4)

NEW YORK (Spl.)—New York heard its last Toscanini-directed concert when the master conductor led his last Philharmonic Orchestra concert of the year here. Toscanini has resigned and new directors to take his place next year have been named, but it is expected that he will return to the podium for several guest concerts in 1937.

Toscanini's next scheduled concert is in Tel Aviv in October when he will inaugurate the Palestine Symphony Orchestra which Bronislaw Hubermann, famous violinist, is forming.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (Spl.)—Not the best weight man in the nation, Arthur Loeb, captain of the Yale track team, has been one of the most consistent point makers for the Bulldogs in years.

In every meet this season, he has always counted at least one first place, and often he finishes in front in two events. Loeb weighs almost 200 pounds and has a powerful build.

The Editor's Chair

Several months ago we noted receipt from our New York office of two subscriptions from Colombia, South America. Since these subscriptions, from brothers, were our first foreign readers, we were naturally elated. So are we this week with the receipt of our first European subscription — from Greece. Victor Paparos, whose address is Ecole Constandanidis, Salonique (Salonica) Greece, is our first European reader.

It would be interesting to be able to print a letter in "Our Freedom of the Press" column from these foreign readers to our readers in the United States. Just a suggestion, Mr. Paparos, and the Mizrahi brothers.

Although we do not agree with the contentions of Joseph Brainin, head of the Seven Arts Feature Syndicate, in his open letter to Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, executive committee member of the Liberty League, we agree less with Judge Proskauer's decision to ignore the letter. And we agree even less with those Anglo-Jewish newspapers who, after taking up the cudgels for Mr. Brainin by giving top heading to his open letter, allowed the matter to drop by failing to denounce Judge Proskauer's deliberate slur upon them and upon the feature service they purchase. The Jewish Transcript, enterprising Seattle Anglo-Jewish newspaper, logically followed up Brainin's open letter with an editorial demanding that Judge Proskauer reply.

In days of dueling, if the gentleman offering the insult considered his antagonist of too low breeding, he often ignored the challenge as below his dignity. That is what Judge Proskauer did, in effect, when he decided not to answer Mr. Brainin. Right or wrong, Mr. Brainin, because Judge Proskauer is a public figure, had a perfect right to demand an explanation, and Judge Proskauer displayed mean tactics by his silence.

If you want surcease from the besetting problems of the Jew, take a long drive out into the less-traveled highways into the green-countryside. There the beam-

An Insignificant Paper Gains Significance

In an adjacent column, this paper reprints an editorial from last Friday's issue of The Detroit Jewish Chronicle, one of the leading Anglo-Jewish publications in the United States.

At the outset this paper wishes to apologize to The Detroit Jewish Chronicle for its assumption of the right of freedom of speech. And it wishes to apologize at the same time to The American Jewish Congress for, while only an "insignificant" publication, it had the effrontery to criticize the all-powerful and never-erring Congress in its attempt to foist its rule upon the Jews of the United States.

Unfortunately, for some time the national edition of The Spokesman has been only four pages, for had it been larger than its arguments, according to our Detroit contemporary, would have borne weight and would have been deserving of consideration.

But there is a possibility that the national edition of The Spokesman, together with its Louisville edition (eight and twelve pages) and The Jewish Post, of Indianapolis, is not very small. And there is the same possibility, that our masthead message, "America's Fastest Growing Jewish Weekly Publication," which the Chronicle finds so objectionable, is borne out in fact and, although perhaps irking to less enterprising newspapers, is still an authentic statement. Here are the figures:

August 1932 .....	600
August 1933 .....	1,200
August 1934 .....	3,200
August 1935 .....	7,400
January 1, 1936 .....	11,355

In August, 1932, The Spokesman Company purchased from the Louisville Y. M. H. A. its monthly organ, The Chronicle Spokesman, which at that time boasted no paid circulation, but distributed approximately 600 copies. Within a year the circulation had been doubled, and every subscriber a paid-in-advance reader. Figures for 1933 and 1934 are not verifiable by our records, but the 1935 and 1936 figures record the actual paid-in-advance circulation. The growth on which The Spokesman Company bases its claims of fastest growing publication is 1,926 per cent in three and a half years.

So the Chronicle can now no longer attack The Spokesman on its insignificance in size, but only on its insignificance in logic.

But even here this paper wishes to take exception to the remarks of its contemporary.

The Chronicle objects because this paper termed "insulting" the suggestion of The American Jewish Congress made to cities which had never heretofore considered the Congress important enough to form a Congress section, that they arrange an organization so that The American Jewish Congress could then be said to represent the entire nation. No opportunity was offered for a demurrer by any of the more important and already organized groups, the order was for the formation of a Congress section with or without the support of such powerful organizations as The B'nai B'rith and The American Jewish Committee. No opportunity was offered for a meeting whereby the city might vote on participation in The American Jewish Congress elections of World Jewish Congress delegates. No. The few Congress sympathizers in each city were urged to call a meeting to elect "democratically" delegates to the Washington meeting.

This may not be insulting to some cities. But it is insulting to any city which prides itself on its self-government and its ability to make its own decisions without any help from a New York dictatorial group.

Take, for instance, Detroit. A meeting will be held in Detroit this Sunday to elect delegates to the Washington convention. Never before has this Jewish community of 71,268 Jewish souls considered the American Jewish Congress of enough significance to form a permanent Congress section. And in Detroit the Pisgah Lodge of B'nai B'rith, local representative of the largest Jewish fraternal order in the world, and the American Jewish Committee members, part of the beneficent and distinguished American Jewish Committee headed by Dr. Cyrus Adler, are opposed to the World Jewish Congress. How many of Detroit's 71,000 Jews these two groups represent cannot be determined, but it can be said that they represent more of that city's Jewish population than an organization which has even up until today never had a permanent organization there.

Had the American Jewish Congress really desired a representative election, it could have written to the Detroit Jewish Community along with the others asking that they consider taking part in the Washington conference. But even this would not have given Louis Lipsky the right of saying in Paris at the preliminary meeting of the World Jewish Congress that the American Jewish Congress did not need a democratic election in the United States because it already represented the Jews of that nation.

Popular will, says the Chronicle, in this country is turning towards the World Jewish Congress. This may be so, and it may also be a fact that Hitler is a friend of the Jews, but this paper has its doubts on both propositions. Only this week, the largest articulate body in the United States, the B'nai B'rith, went on record as opposing the World Jewish Congress.

This paper objects to any organization usurping the will of the Jews of the United States. On such a false foundation very little good can be accomplished. Jews of the United States form a substantial and powerful segment of World Jewry, yet in the World Jewish Congress, THEY WILL NOT BE REPRESENTED.

No one charges that Rabbi Wise and the American Jewish Congress will go to Geneva determined to harm the Jews of the World. But it must be admitted that the American Jewish Congress represents one view of the situation of World Jewry and that this view is almost diametrically opposed to that of the powerful and influential American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith. Then whatever the American Jewish Congress does in Geneva will be diametrically opposed to the will of the majority of Jews of the United States.

HEREIN IS THE DANGER OF ONE ORGANIZATION AUTOCRATICALLY DECLARING IT SPEAKS FOR THE JEWS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Several weeks ago The Chicago Jewish Chronicle made a suggestion which would at once relieve the American Jewish Congress of any aspersions of dictatorship and designate the World Jewish Congress for what it really is. Change the name of the meeting, The Chicago Chronicle suggested, so that the deliberations will be that of a separate and distinct body with one ideology, and not the decided opinions of the Jews of the World. If the American Jewish Congress were honest, it could not ignore this suggestion.

THIS PAPER AGREES HOWEVER WITH THE MAJOR STATEMENT OF THE DETROIT CHRONICLE. THIS PAPER IS FOR A WORLD JEWISH CONGRESS. A CONGRESS WHICH WOULD REPRESENT THE CALM OPINION AND THOUGHTFUL DELIBERATIONS OF A REAL REPRESENTATIVE BODY WHOSE DECLARATIONS WOULD BE GIVEN TO THE WORLD WITH REAL CONSIDERATION FOR THE EFFECTS ON JEWS NOT ONLY IN THOSE NATIONS SUFFERING PERSECUTION BUT IN THOSE WHERE MANY MUST LIVE AS JEWS AMONG NON-JEWS FOR GENERATION AFTER GENERATION.

With Rabbi Wise and the American Jewish Congress employing such methods as at present, there is no hope for a real World Jewish Congress. No other course is offered to this paper except to continue to fight the proposed Congress until it shall have been convinced either by results or logic that its stand on the matter is wrong or illogical.

What Others Call Us

In its editorial columns last week, The Detroit Jewish Chronicle, of Detroit, Mich., opposed The Spokesman, in particular, and its World Jewish Congress stand in general.

The Jewish Congress

An insignificant four-page tabloid sheet published in Louisville, Ky., and boasting in its masthead as being "America's fastest growing Jewish weekly newspaper," presumes to reprimand the American Jewish Congress as being an unrepresentative movement and labels the Congress call for elections to be held in June as "an insulting suggestion." In a streaming headline that very small paper tries to give weight to its editorial expression by announcing in advance that a majority of the members of the administrative committee of the Zionist Organization of America are opposed to the World Jewish Congress. Several days after this story appeared it became known that this important Zionist body voted 27 to 3 in favor of participation in the Congress.

If the Louisville paper is the best example of opposition to the Congress, then it is flattery indeed for the movement headed by Dr. Stephen S. Wise. In spite of opposition to the Congress on the part of the American Jewish Committee, the Alliance Israelite, the Board of Jewish Deputies and some influential individuals, the popular sentiment in this country, in France and in Great Britain is rapidly swinging in favor of the World Jewish Congress. We have nothing to lose and everything to gain, and outstanding Jewish leaders admit it and are being enlisted in favor of this movement. In eastern European countries, whose Jewries are the best judges of their own needs for defense against oppression, opposition to the Congress is practically unknown.

Sentiment and reason are leaning in the direction of the Congress movement, and we do not hesitate to urge support for the movement by this community.

Rich Favor Emigration

BERLIN (JTA)—Future activities of the Hilfsverein der Juden in Detuschland, German Jewish relief organization, will be concentrated on emigration to overseas countries, it was announced last week by Max Warburg, Hamburg banker and Jewish leader at that body's annual meeting.

Mr. Warburg, who is vice-president of the Hilfsverein, urged that German-Jewish emigration be regarded as part of the general Jewish migration from Eastern and Central Europe.

Criticizing the fifty-fifty principle of sharing between Palestine projects and those for emigration to other overseas countries, Mr. Warburg advocated that the entire problem be entrusted to qualified individuals.

He announced that the Hilfsverein is forming specialized groups of emigrants and is carefully selecting emigrants for the colonies of Jewish Colonization Society in the Argentine.

After attacking "the wild emigration projects of the past year," Mr. Warburg said the Hilfsverein is sending experts overseas to study on the spot the absorptive capacity of each country.

Concluding his address, Mr. Warburg advised that the German emigrants behave as a good Jew, not engage in politics and add his share to Jewish life in the country he makes his new home.

duced in Palestine by the Keren Hayesod. The narrative for the picture was specially written by Maurice Samuel, internationally known author, and the narrator is David Ross, leading radio announcer. The talkie has been awarded the International Motion Picture prize, and the Day award in New York. Recently in Geneva, 1,200 leading League of Nations officials were deeply moved by a special performance of the film.

The picture is a panorama of the astounding progress which Jewish settlers have made in the past decade in Palestine. The searching eye of the camera has retained for posterity the story of the attainment of the 2,000-year-old goal of the Jewish people, showing the economic strides, the building work, the rehabilitation of exiles and refugees, the sacrifice of the pioneers, the cultural advances made in the land, such as the Hebrew University, the symphony concerts, and the folk dances and mass cultural movements among the Jews of Palestine.

Those who are vitally interested in the story of the Holy Land should make a special effort to see "The Land of Promise." It offers the next best substitute for an actual Palestinian voyage.

Pelley Uses Lodge Mail

SEATTLE, Wash. (Spl.)—Reprinting of a photostatic copy in Pelley's Weekly, organ of the "Christian Party," of a personal letter of P. Allen Rickles, grand president of District No. 4 of B'nai B'rith, is puzzling lodge officials here.

The letter, written to Jewish leaders in the State of Washington, called attention to the menace of the organized program of circulating anti-Jewish lies by William Dudley Pelley's "Christian Party." Pelley's newest party, organized after the dissolution of his infamous Silver Shirts, has been unusually active in Bremerton, Tacoma, Mt. Vernon, Spokane, Verett, Bellingham and this city.

Not unduly aroused by the incident, Mr. Rickles said he was astonished to see "my personal correspondence in Pelley's sheet—of all places. I suppose, if I had the time or the inclination I could trace how he happened to get hold of such correspondence. But it doesn't matter much."

Riots End In Numbers

NEW YORK (JTA)—Israel B. Brodie, president of the American Economic Committee for Palestine, arriving last week on the Paris from the Holy Land, attributed recent disorders in Palestine to the agitation of Arab leaders and said Jewish leaders in Palestine believe the only way effectively to solve the problem of Arab-Jewish relations is to bring into Palestine another 500,000 Jews as soon as possible.

England Adamant

LONDON (JTA)—Neither riots nor the Arab general strike, now in its third week in Palestine, will force the British Government to accede to Arab demands for cessation of Jewish immigrants to the Holy Land, Colonial Secretary J. H. Thomas told the House of Commons last week.

Reviewing the situation, in reply to a query by Lieut. Commander R. J. Fletcher, Laborite, Mr. Thomas said the strike was more general now than it had been and might "lead to further disorders."

Jewish participation in the congress, which opens at Geneva on August 8.

The Board of Deputies of British Jews, the Anglo-Jewish representative body, has declined an invitation to participate in the congress. Supporters of the congress, therefore, want a national conference which could elect the representatives of this country to the Geneva meeting.

78 Congressmen For Congress

NEW YORK (JTA)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, had this week messages from 78 congressmen, including thirteen senators, sharply condemning Hitlerism and other anti-Semitic movements and endorsing convocation of a world Jewish Congress.

Senator William E. Borah, a Republican candidate for president, was quoted as saying: "There are certainly deep and controlling reasons why this congress should convene. I am sure that it will have the sympathetic consideration of all peoples, regardless of race or religion."

Others who sent messages included Senators James Couzens, Frederick Van Nuys, Arthur Cap-

Taken By Death

OTTO A. ROSALSKY

A. Rosalsky, Judge, Dies

NEW YORK (JTA)—Otto A. Rosalsky, senior judge of the Court of General Sessions and prominent in Jewish communal life, died Monday at Mount Sinai Hospital in his sixty-third year. He was recovering from an operation performed on him last Friday for a minor ailment when he suddenly took a turn for the worse.

Upon hearing of Judge Rosalsky's death, Mayor LaGuardia ordered flags on buildings under his jurisdiction lowered to half-staff. He also telephoned to Police Commissioner Valentine to arrange a police guard of honor at the bier while the body is lying in state.

Interesting himself in Jewish affairs, Judge Rosalsky headed the Jewish Education Association and played a leading role in settling the internal strife that had for years beset the kosher poultry industry in New York. His mediation settled a threatened strike of shechtm and laid the basis for reorganization of poultry slaughter with attachment of plumbas, or legbands, to chickens.

He was appointed to the General Sessions Court in 1905 at the age of thirty-two—the youngest man to hold the position. He tried several famous criminal cases. Judge Rosalsky was born and educated on the lower East Side and was graduated from the College of the City of New York.

RABBI PREDICTS DOOM FOR AMERICAN JEWRY

Jews Decreasing Fastest Eugenics Leader Declares

Assimilation Is Problem

BUFFALO, N. Y. (Spl.)—Doom for American Jewry by assimilation was predicted here by Dr. Joseph L. Fink, rabbi of Temple Beth Zion, writing in The Buffalo Jewish Review, local Anglo-Jewish weekly.

"From every angle," Rabbi Fink wrote, "the sorriest problem to contemplate in Jewish life is not anti-Semitism but assimilation."

Recounting this process of assimilation which today "leads to complete absorption," Rabbi Fink declared the first generation speaks Yiddish, the second generation Yiddish and English and the third generation English alone. The training of this generation, Rabbi Fink said, consists of a minimum of Jewish religious education. The members of the fourth generation, Rabbi Fink said, do not even receive that minimum of education; they are completely assimilated, and intermarry.

Low Birth Rate Blamed

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Bringing out that Jews are decreasing more rapidly in the United States than any other religious denomination because of a diminishing birth rate, the annual meeting of the American Eugenics Society heard Frederick Osborn, a member of the board of directors, relate that Baptists and Methodists are increasing 60 per cent per generation.

Catholics, although increasing faster than Jews, increase more slowly than Baptists and Methodists, because they live in urban centers.

Rabbi Sydney Goldstein, chairman of the Social Justice Commission of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, told the meeting that since the best people are limiting their children, a complete reconstruction of the economic system is the only solution of the problem.
